

Forthcoming Events: R Courses in Munich

by Friedrich Leisch

The department of statistics at Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München, Germany, is offering a range of R courses to practitioners from industry, universities and all others interested in using R for data analysis, starting with R basics (November 8–9, by Torsten Hothorn and Friedrich Leisch) followed by R programming (December 12–13, by Torsten Hothorn and Friedrich Leisch), machine learning (January 23–24, by Torsten Hothorn, Friedrich Leisch and Carolin Strobl), econometrics (spring 2008, by Achim Zeileis), and generalized regression (spring 2008, by Thomas Kneib).

The regular courses are taught in German, more information is available from <http://www.statistik.lmu.de/R/>.
